

Is It Essential to Offer Expiation as well as Making up Missed Fasts, If a Person Delayed Making Them up with No Excuse?

هل يلزم المرء الصيام والكفارة عند تأخيره قضاء الصوم بلا عذر؟

{English – انجليزي}

Written by: Muhammed Saleh Al-Munajjed

<http://www.islamqa.com>

Reviewed by: Abu Adham Osama Omara

<http://www.islamhouse.com>

1431-2010

islamhouse.com

هل يلزم المرء الصيام والكفارة عند تأخيره قضاء الصوم بلا عذر؟
{باللغة الإنجليزية}

للشيخ محمد صالح المنجد

موقع الإسلام سؤال وجواب

<http://www.islamqa.com>

راجعها: أبو أدهم أسامة عمارة

موقع دار الإسلام

<http://www.islamhouse.com>

1431-2010

islamhouse.com

Q: I am a young woman who missed making up some of the fasts I owed in past years. Is it permissible to make up the missed fasts only, or should I fast and also offer expiation? If expiation is required, then how much is it?

A: Praise be to Allaah.

It is not permissible for a person to delay making up the missed Ramadaan fasts that he owed until the next Ramadaan begins with no excuse. If he does that, then he commits a sin. The scholars differed as to whether he has to offer expiation as well as make them up because of this delay or not.

Our advice to the sister who asked this question is to strive to make up the fasts that she owes with no delay, so that she does not burden herself and it then becomes difficult for her to make them up.

With regard to the issue of expiation, we have already discussed the scholarly differences of opinion concerning this matter in questions no 26865 and 21710.

From the two questions mentioned above, you may know that you do not have to offer expiation as well as making up the fasts, according to the more correct view, rather what you have to do is to repent to Allaah and resolve not to do such a thing again. If you offer expiation as well as making up the missed fasts in order to be on the safe side, there is nothing wrong with that. The expiation consists of feeding one poor person for each day.

See also question no. 43268.